Murder in the state of sudden, strong emotional anxiety (Article 111)
Intentional infanticide by a mother (Article 112)
Murder by exceeding self-defence (Article 113)

¹ It should be taken into consideration, that the sum of prosecution initiation indicators counted in relation to the relevant articles of the Criminal Code often exceeds prosecution initiation overall indicator, which is due to the fact, that the prosecution initiation indicator is concerned with respect to each article when there is a combination of crimes (e.g., a person committed two or more crimes). Additionally, from the software standpoint, it is also perceived as the beginning of prosecution if charges already filed against the accused are specified (procedurally it means that a new resolution on “charges against a person” needs to be issued by the prosecutor), which naturally increases overall indicator.

Manslaughter by negligence (Article 116)

² It should be taken into consideration, that the sum of victims counted in relation to the relevant articles of the Criminal Code often exceeds overall indicator of victims, which is due to the fact, that the indicator of victims is concerned with respect to each article when there is a combination of crimes (e.g., two or more crimes are committed against a victim). Additionally, from the software standpoint, it is also perceived as the beginning of independent prosecution if charges already filed against the accused are specified (procedurally it means that a new resolution on “charges against a person” needs to be issued by the prosecutor), which naturally increases overall indicator of victims.

NOTE. The average number of cases per probation officer at the regional level in a given region was calculated by dividing the number of probationers in the given region on the number of probation officers. Calculating the average number of cases across the country was calculated by dividing the total number of probationers on the total number of probation officers. The number of probationers in regional groups, as well as across the country is reflected in the Table N 56.
